Childhood Aggression and Violence Oct 13 2020 The conference on which this volume is based was one of a series of symposia initiated by the Department of Psychology at the University of Hawaii at Manoa on the theory and research surrounding topics of interest to the faculty and germane to the Hawaiian community. In order to encourage interaction around specific themes, the symposium series has assembled a small, select group of scholars to exchange knowledge, ideas, and enthusiasm with the resident faculty, students, and the community at large. The first two symposia concentrated on cross-cultural themes (Marsella, Tharp, & Ciborowski, 1979; Marsella, DeVos, & Hsu, 1985). The third one addressed a significant social problem: aggression and violence in children. At the time that our plan was being developed, Hawaii, along with mainland states, was experiencing or at least expressing widespread alarm over the involvement of children and youth in violent crime, in belligerence at school, as perpetrators of aggression at home, and as victims of physical abuse. This symposium was planned around a major area within the department, the Clinical Studies Program. The Clinical Studies Program has developed along two interrelated lines of concentration: one emphasized the foundation of clinical psychology in basic science and the other expanded its purview into the broader community, covering prevention, systems change, and social networks.

Science and Democracy Sep 23 2021 The relationship between science and democracy has become a much-debated issue. In recent years, we have even seen an exponential growth in literature on the subject. No doubt, the interest has partly been justified by the concern of public opinion over the technological repercussions of scientific research. Moreover, there are scientific theories that, if they were accepted, would allegedly imply the adoption of policies that have wide social consequences, as well as a rethinking of deeply-rooted habits on the part of the citizens. These considerations alone allow us to understand the reasons for the interest in the, at times troublesome, relationships between science and public opinion which characterize democratic societies.

Interview Preparation Apr 06 2020 Are you afraid of not performing at best during your job interview? Are you scared of missing your chance to land your dreaming job after all the sacrifices you made? Then keep reading... Make a successful job interview is not as easy as ABC. You have been training yourself for years, studying and preparing for that day. However even the small details can count and make the difference. Are you aware of that even though the average length of a job interview is 40 minutes, 1/3 of interviewers will have made their decision within 90 seconds. Do you know that, on average, it takes 3 interviews to secure a job, and this process takes between 3 to 6 weeks? Only 1 in 6 applicants for a job will be invited for an interview. Unfortunately, school does not prepare you for all of that. It doesn't matter whether you attended an ivy league school or had the maximum results in your text. It's not either a problem of experience or a good job reference from your old boss. The only truth is that you need to get prepared and be able to master the job interview process. Indeed, the variables and circumstances can affect your chances to get the job are so many and unpredictable you need to understand the job interview preparation is more crucial than anything else. Remember your performance during the interview cannot be casual. What you say, what you do and don't do must be the result of a goal oriented preparation meant to make you successful. I have been preparing people for their job interview in the last 15 years. I helped several people with different situation and problems to get their dreamed job. I trained people to be more confident in themselves, I helped people to overcome their anxiety. I suggested them the best ways to present themselves in a better way. Even the more complicated cases with no previous job experience or a poor education. I packed all my 15 years' experience in this book to transfer to you all my knowledge and competence on the job interview preparation. In this book you will learn The most effective techniques to present yourself at best The unknown strategy to make a first impression even with the most skeptical interviewer A collection of the most common and unsuccessful mistakes, don'ts and questions to be avoided during and after the interview Be aware this is part of a collection of books about the job interview. Get Talent! Nov 06 2022 For the interviewer, Beyond A Gut Feeling is the essential tool for asking the right questions, in the right way, to hire the right talent. It begins by helping the reader question using gut feelings for selection. Instead, a behavioral interviewing approach is recommended to minimize errors, improve prediction, and build defensibility. Special attention is given to using an interviewing system that will coordinate interviews and present a consistent strategy. It begins with a job analysis and continues through developing interview questions, guiding the interview, rating answers, and making a decision. All of this is offered with a sensitivity to giving each candidate respect and dignity. This book is a must for the corporate customer and libraries.

Interviewing Dec 27 2021 The most widely-used text for the interviewing course, Interviewing: Principles and Practices offers comprehensive coverage of a wide range of interviews, as well as the most thorough treatment of the basics of interviewing (including the complex interpersonal communication process, types and uses of questions, and the structuring of interviews from opening to closing). Relevant theory is carefully integrated as a foundation for the practical aspects of interviewing--for both the interviewer and the interviewee. The 11th edition continues to reflect the growing sophistication with which interviewing is being approached, the ever-expanding body of research on all types of interview settings, recent interpersonal communication theory, and the effect of equal opportunity laws on interviewing practices.

Studies in Language and Social Interaction Aug 30 2019 This collection offers empirical studies and theoretical essays about human communication in everyday life. The writings come from many of the world's leading researchers and cut across academic boundaries, engaging scholars and teachers from such disciplines as communication, sociology, anthropology, linguistics, and education. Chapters emphasize empirical, qualitative studies of people's everyday uses of talk-in-interaction, and they feature work in such areas as sociolinguistics, conversation analysis, discourse analysis, and ethnography. The volume is dedicated to and highlights themes in the work of the late Robert Hopper, an outstanding scholar in communication who pioneered research in Language and Social Interaction (LSI). The contributors examine various features of human interaction (such as laughter, vocal repetition, and hand gestures) occurring naturally within a variety of settings (at a dinner table, a doctor's office, an automotive repair shop, and so forth), whereby interlocutors accomplish aspects of their interpersonal or institutional lives (resolve a disagreement, report bad medical news, negotiate a raise, and more), all of which may relate to larger social issues (including police brutality, human spirituality, death, and optimism). The chapters in this anthology show that social life is largely a communicative accomplishment and that people constitute the social realities experienced every day through small and subtle ways of communicating, carefully orchestrated but commonly taken for granted. In showcasing the diversity of contemporary LSI research, this volume is appropriate for scholars and graduate students in language and social interaction, communication, sociology, research methods, qualitative research methods, discourse analysis, conversation analysis, linguistics, and related areas.

Learning in a Digital World Feb 03 2020 This book aims at guiding the educators from a variety of available technologies to support learning and teaching by discussing the learning benefits and the challenges that interactive technology imposes. This guidance is based on practical experiences gathered through developing and integrating them into varied educational settings. It compiles experiences gained with various interactive technologies, offering a comprehensive perspective on the use and potential value of interactive technologies to support learning and teaching. Taken together, the chapters provide a broader view that does not focus exclusively on the uses of technology in educational settings, but also on the impact and ability of technology to improve the learning and teaching processes. The book addresses the needs of researchers, educators and other stakeholders in the area of education interested in learning how interactive technologies can be used to overcome key educational challenges.

The Environmental Challenges for Japan and Germany Dec 03 2019

Japan and Germany as the number two and three of the economic powers base their success more than others on their industries. These have created in the past heavy environmental hazards (Minamata disease and 'Waldsterben'), which again led to the fact that they have become leaders in environmental technologies and protection. This volume presents the most outstanding contributions of a conference organised at the Musashi Institute of Technology, Yokohama, in October 2002, by the German-Japanese Society of Social Sciences, which assembles some of the most prominent specialists in the field of both countries.

Investigation of Hazards of Helicopter Operations and Root Causes of Helicopter Accidents Apr 18 2021 During 1983 and 1984, Systems Control Technology, Inc. conducted a survey of civil helicopter pilot organizations from throughout the United States who were involved in a wide range of helicopter operations for the purpose of determining the hazards of helicopter operations and the root causes of the high rate of helicopter accidents. The survey was administered through personal interviews, meetings, and questionnaires. The derived questionnaire data included census data, profiles of the pilots work environment and procedures and their own perspectives on the hazards of helicopter operations and root causes of helicopter accidents. These data were compared with historical National Transportation Safety Board accident reports and accident briefs to determine more specifically the root causes of helicopter accidents. The results of the analysis include a list of hazards and probable root causes of accidents, as well as technological, training and standardization remedies to the causes.
