

Deconstructing The American Mosque Space Gender And Aesthetic

Space, Gender, Knowledge: Feminist Readings, Work and Space, Gender Space Architect Space, Place and Gender, Gender, Space and Agency in Gender and Space in Early Modern England, Gender, Knowledge Gendered Spaces The Routledge Companion to Modernity, Space and Gender Frontiers of Space, Bodies and Gender Gender and Space in Rural Britain, 1840-1920 Frontiers of Space, Bodies and Gender Public Urban Space, Gender and Segregation Migrations Global Perspectives on Gender and Space Gender and Space Horizons in Human Geography Gender Studies in Architecture Making Space Space, Text and Gender Mapping Modernity in Shanghai Urban Spaces and Gender in Asia Illegal City Gender, Space, and the Gaze in Post-Hausmann Visual Culture Women, Religion, and Space Space, Gender, and the Gaze in Literature and Art Gendered Approaches to Spatial Development in China Gender, and Everyday Space The Space Between Gender, Space and City Banks Gender, Space and Time Masculinities and Place Skateboarding and Femininity The New Port More Gender, Violence and Power in Indonesia Gender, UN Peacebuilding, and the Politics of Space Gender and Colonial Space Gender Studies: Gendering Christianity Postcolonial Space Gender and Authority across Disciplines, Space and Time

Thank you very much for downloading Deconstructing The American Mosque Space Gender And Aesthetics. As you may know, people have search numerous times for their favorite novels like this Deconstructing The American Mosque Space Gender And Aesthetics, but end up in infectious downloads. Rather than enjoying a good book with a cup of coffee in the afternoon, instead they juggled with some bugs inside their laptop.

Deconstructing The American Mosque Space Gender And Aesthetics is available in our digital library and access to it is set as public so you can get it instantly. Our books collection hosts in multiple locations, allowing you to get the most less latency time to download our books like this one. Merely said, the Deconstructing The American Mosque Space Gender And Aesthetics is universally compatible with any devices to read

Gender and Authority across Disciplines, Space and Time 2019 This edited collection investigates the relationship between gender and authority across geographical contexts, periods and fields. Who is really a legitimate voice in debate and decision-making, and how is that legitimization produced? Through a variety of methodological approaches, the chapters address some of the most pressing and controversial themes under scrutiny in current feminist scholarship and activism, such as pornography, political representation, LGBTQ struggles, female genital mutilation, the #MeToo movement, abortion, divorce and consent. Organized in sections, "Politics," "Law and Religion," and "Imaginations," the contributors highlight formal and informal aspects of authority, its gendered and racialized configurations, and practices of solidarity, resistance and subversion by traditionally disempowered subjects. In dialogue with feminist scholarship on power and the notion of authority as elaborated here offers a distinctive lens to critique political and epistemic forms of inequality and oppression, and will be of use to scholars and students across gender studies, sociology, linguistics, theology, history, law, film, and literature.

Global Perspectives on Gender and Space 2021 Feminism has re-shaped the way we think about equality, power relations and social change. Recent feminist scholarship has provided new theoretical frameworks, methodologies and empirical analyses of how gender and feminism are situated within the development of the world. Global Perspectives on Gender and Space: Engaging Feminism and Development draws upon this framework to explore the effects of globalization on development in diverse geographical contexts. It explores how v men's lives are gendered in specific spaces as well as across multiple landscapes. Traveling from South Africa to sub-Saharan Africa to North America and the Caribbean, the contributions illustrate the link between gender and global development, including economic livelihoods, policy measures and environmental change. Divided into three sections, Global Perspectives on Gender and Space showcases the following issues: One) the impact of neoliberal policies on transnational migration, public services and microfinance programs; Two) feminist participatory methodologies employed in the evaluation of land use, women's cooperatives and liberationist struggles and Three) gendered approaches to climate change, natural disasters and conservation in the Global South. A feminist lens is the common thread throughout these sections that weaves gender into the fabric of everyday life, providing a common link between varied spaces around the globe by mapping gendered power and social change. This timely volume provides geographic comparisons and case studies to give empirically informed insights on processes and practices relevant to feminism and development. It illustrates ways to empower individuals and communities through transnational struggles and grassroots organizations while emphasizing human rights and gender equity, and will be of interest to those studying Geography, Development Studies, International Relations and Gender Studies.

Gender and Colonial Space Sep 27 2019 "The aim of this book is to interrogate the process whereby spatial relations are constituted as gendered, raced and classed within the colonial and imperial context." --in Space, Gender, Knowledge Apr 26 2022 Space Gender Knowledge is an innovative and comprehensive introduction to the geographies of gender and the gendered nature of spatial relations. It examines the issues raised by women's movements and academic feminism, and outlines the main shifts in feminist geographical work, from the geography of women to the impact of post-structuralism. In making their contributions, the editors have drawn on a wide range of interdisciplinary material, ranging across spatial scales from the local to the globe.

Space, Text and Gender Mar 14 2021 Dr Moore analyses the Marakwet through the relationship between the organisation of household and gender relations in a changing society.

Gender, Work and Space Oct 01 2022 Examines how social boundaries are constructed between men and women in the work place and how these differences are grounded, constituted in and through, space, place and social networks.

Gender, UN Peacebuilding, and the Politics of Space Oct 28 2019 The United Nations Peacebuilding Commission (UNPBC) was established in December 2005 to develop outlines of best practice in post-conflict reconstruction, and to secure the political and material resources necessary to assist states in transitioning from conflict to peacetime. Currently, the organization is involved in reconstruction and peacebuilding activities in 18 countries. Yet, a 2010 review by permanent representatives to the United Nations found that the hoped-for peacebuilding architecture "despite committed and dedicated efforts...ha[d] yet to be realized." Two of the hopes relate to gender and power, specifically that peacebuilding efforts integrate a "gender perspective" and that the Commission consult with civil society, NGOs, and women's organizations. This book is the first extensive and dedicated analysis of the activities of the UN Peacebuilding Commission with regard to gender politics, broadly conceived, and the gendered dynamics of civil society participation in peacebuilding activities. Laura J. Shepherd draws upon original fieldwork that she conducted at the UN to argue that the gendered spatial politics of peacebuilding not only feminizes civil society organizations, but also perpetuates hierarchies that privilege the international over the domestic realms. The book argues that the dominant representations of women, gender, and civil society in UN peacebuilding discourse produce spatial hierarchies that paradoxically undermine the contemporary emphasis on "bottom-up" governance of peacebuilding activities.

The Space Between Us Jun 04 2020 In this original study, Cynthia Cockburn takes us into three war situations to reveal how certain women have quietly chosen to cross the space between their differences with war and bullets.

Gender Studies in Architecture May 16 2021 Analyzing a range of ideas from biological, evolutionary and anthropological theories to a variety of feminist, psychoanalytic, poststructuralist and constructivist theories, this book provides a comprehensive introduction to the problematics of gender and power in architectural and urban design. Topics range from conceptions of postulated matriarchal architecture in Old Europe to contemporary technologies of control; from the mechanisms of gaze to architectural performatives; from under-representation of women in the planning profession to the integration of gender issues to the city. The particular strengths of the book lie in its inclusiveness and critical analysis. It is not a partisan defence of feminism or any other theory, but a critical introduction to the issues relating to gender. Moreover, the conclusions reach beyond a narrow gender studies perspective to social and ethical considerations that are unavoidable in any responsible architectural or urbanistic practice. With its broad range and balanced use of different theories, the book is suitable as an overview of gender studies in architecture and useful for the designer who is concerned with the social effects of the built environment.

Mapping Modernity in Shanghai 10 2021 This book argues that modernity first arrived in late nineteenth century Shanghai via a new spatial configuration. This city's colonial capitalist development ruptured the traditional configuration of self-contained households, towns, and natural landscapes in a continuous process, producing a new set of fragmented as well as fluid spaces. In this process, Chinese sojourners actively appropriated new concepts and technology rather than passively responding to Western influences. Li reconstructs the spatial and material existence of these transient people and reconstructs a cultural geography that moves from the interior to the neighbourhood and public spaces. In this book the author: discusses the courtyard as a surrogate home and analyzes its business, gender, and material configurations; examines a new type of residential neighbourhood and shows how its innovative spatial arrangements transformed the traditional order and hierarchy; surveys a range of public spaces and highlights the mythic perceptions of industry; traces the adaptations of colonial spatial types, the emergence of an urban public, and the spatial fluidity between elites and masses. Through reading contemporaneous literary and visual sources, the book charts a hybrid modern development that stands in contrast to the positivist conception of modern progress. As such it will be a provocative read for scholars of Chinese cultural and architectural history.

Masculinities and Place 02 2020 Masculinities and Place bring together an impressive range of high-profile and emerging researchers to consolidate and expand new domains of interest in the geographies of masculinities. It is structured around key and emerging themes within recently completed and on-going research about the intersections between men, masculinities and place. Building upon broader themes in social and cultural geographies, cultural economy and urban/rural studies, the collection is organised around the following themes of: theorising masculinities and place; intersectionality; home; family; domestic labour; work; and well-being.

Horizons in Human Geography 16 2021 Human geography, as a subject, has become widely recognized since its connections with the social sciences have widened and deepened the study of people, place and structures. Horizons in Human Geography provides a clear and accessible sketch map of some of the most promising developments in the subject. The book starts by assessing the role and limitations of existing models and theories and proceeds to provide a broad-ranging overview of the major social, cultural, urban, regional, political, economic and environmental issues confronting geographers today. Contents: Introduction; Part I: Beyond The Quantitative Revolution; Part II: People and Places, Societies and Spaces; Part III: Explorations in the City; IV: Landscapes of Production; Part V: Regional Geographies and Global Perspectives; Part VI: Politicising The Environment. Contributors: Derek Gregory, Rex Walford, Michael J. Clark, Alan Wilson, R. J. Johnston, John Eyles, Denis Cosgrove, Linda McDowell, Roger Lee, Keith Bassett, John Short, Richard Dennis, Ian Douglas, Doreen Massey, Richard Meegan, John Harriss, Barbara Hariss, Nigel Thrift, Michael Taylor, Peter Taylor, Graham E. Smith, Stuart Cobridge, Judith Rees, Timothy O'Riordan and Bill

Gender Studies: Gendering Christianity 26 2019

Gender and Spade 18 2021 Straddling the domains of anthropology and gender studies, this unique book explores the conjunction of space and gender in the practices and discourses of femininity and sexuality. The book: - Provides accounts of the domains and activities of women - Describes cultural perceptions and experiences of the female body - Explores gender in the ritual realm - Provides suggestions for formulating a basis for female agency within a space-body matrix

New Frontiers of Space, Bodies and Gender 24 2022 This collection unravels the stereotypical images of gender and space and presents a series of new explorations into both 'lived' and 'imagined' spaces. In New Frontiers of Space, Bodies and Gender leading contemporary writers from across an eclectic mix of disciplines examine an exciting array of issues such as: * Jamaican Ragga music and female performance * Feminist violence work * Pregnant women's experience of shopping centres * The fear of crime felt by women greenspace * Implications of technology in gendering identities This book forges new parameters for gender and space, leaving behind the simple focus on women-as-victim in the public arena and remapping considerations of space which look beyond bricks and mortar. Contributors: Aylish Wood, Robyn Longh

Grant, Lesley Klein, Affrica Taylor, Inga-Lisa Sangregorio, Jacqueline Leavitt, Tracey Skelton, Nina Wakef
Jos Boys, Sally R. Munt, Doreen Massey, Jacquie Burgess, Maher Anjum, Lynne Walker.

Space, Gender, and the Gaze in Literature Sep 07 2020 This volume explores how the concepts of space and gaze are tied in with social constructions of gender relations. It discusses the gendered body, the the relationship between body and memory, the memory of war, monstrosity, and also domestic and h as key concepts. The arguments within the book connect core theoretical issues of gender and space known literary texts and contexts, like the poems of Sylvia Plath and the novels of Don DeLillo, Toni M and Cormack McCarthy. The collection will be of interest to university students and instructors alike, extended introduction to critical and theoretical discourses on gender and space.

The Routledge Companion to Modernity, Space and Gender Feb 20 2022 The Routledge Companion to Modernity, Space and Gender reframes the discussion of modernity, space and gender by examining ho
"modernity" has been defined in various cultural contexts of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries, definition has been expressed spatially and architecturally, and what effect this has had on women in everyday lives. In doing so, this volume presents theories and methods for understanding space and g they relate to the development of cities, urban space and individual building types (such as housing, w or commercial spaces) in both the creation of and resistance to social transformations and modern gl capitalism. The book contains a diverse range of case studies from the US, Europe, the UK, and Asian c such as China and India, which bring together a multiplicity of approaches to a continuing and commo reinforces the need for alternatives to the existing theoretical canon.

Gender, Space, and the Gaze in Post-Haussmann Visual Culture Nov 09 2020 Charles Baudelaire's flâneur, as described in his 1863 essay "The Painter of Modern Life," remains central to understandings of gende and the gaze in late nineteenth-century Paris, despite misgivings by some scholars. Baudelaire's privile leisurely figure, at home on the boulevards, underlies theorizations of bourgeois masculinity and, by im bourgeois femininity, whereby men gaze and roam urban spaces unreservedly while women, lacking th to either gaze or roam, are wedded to domesticity. In challenging this tired paradigm and offering fres consider how gender, space, and the gaze were constructed, this book attends to several neglected e visual and written culture: the ubiquitous male beggar as the true denizen of the boulevard, the abund depictions of well-to-do women looking (sometimes at men), the popularity of windows and balconies perches, and the overwhelming emphasis given by both male and female artists to domestic scenes. T premise that gender, space, and the gaze have been too narrowly conceived by a scholarly embrace of Baudelaire's flâneur is supported across the cultural spectrum by period sources that include art critic and low visual culture, newspapers, novels, prescriptive and travel literature, architectural practices, in design trends, and fashion journals.

Postcolonial Spaces Jul 26 2019 With essays from a range of geographies and bringing together influent scholars across a range of disciplines, this book focuses on the role of space in the study of the polit contemporary postcolonial experience, engaging with the spectrum of postcolonial spatialities which p significant role in defining global postcolonial culture.

The Illegal City Dec 11 2020 The Illegal City explores the relationship between space, law and gendered subjectivity through a close look at an 'illegal' squatter settlement in Delhi. Since 2000, a series of ju in India have criminalised squatters as 'illegal' citizens, 'encroachers' and 'pickpockets' of urban land, an led to a spate of slum demolitions across the country. This book argues that in this context, it has be distinguish between illegality and informality since it is those 'illegal' slums which are at the receiving 'force of law', where law is violently encountered within everyday spaces. This book uses a gendered intersectional lens to explore how a 'violence of law' shapes how 'public' subjectivities of gender, class and caste are encountered and negotiated within the 'private' spaces of home, family and neighbourho book suggests that resettlement is not a condition that squatters desire; rather something that is se way out of the 'illegal' city. The wait for resettlement is a temporal space of anxiety and uncertainty, particular kinds of politics around law, space and gender takes shape, which transform squatters' relationship to the state, urban development, civil society, and with each other. Through their everyday struggles around sanitation, social and political organisation and the transformation of their homes and families, this book shows that the desire for the 'legal city' is also the irony and utopia of home, which will remain an incomplete project - both for the state and for squatters.

Making Space Apr 14 2021

Maternity Sep 19 2021 Over the past decade geographers have shown a growing interest in 'the body' as an important co-ordinate of subjectivity and as a way of understanding further relationships between people and space. To date, however geographers have published little on what is one of, if not the, most important bodies - bodies that conceive, give birth and nurture other bodies. It is time that feminist, social, and human geographers contributed more to debates about maternal bodies. This book offers a series of windows in which maternal bodies influence, and are influenced by, social and spatial processes. Topics covered include women 'coming out' as pregnant at work, changing fashion for pregnant women, being disabled and pregnancy, the politics of home versus hospital birth, breastfeeding practices that sit outside the norm, women who are constructed as 'bad' mothers, and 'e-mums' (mothers who go on-line).

New Frontiers of Space, Bodies and Gender Nov 21 2021 This collection unravels the stereotypical images of gender and space and presents a series of new explorations into both 'lived' and 'imagined' spaces. In New Frontiers of Space, Bodies and Gender leading contemporary writers from across an eclectic mix of disciplines examine an exciting array of issues such as: * Jamaican Ragga music and female performance * Feminist violence work * Pregnant women's experience of shopping centres * The fear of crime felt by women in greenspace * Implications of technology in gendering identities This book forges new parameters for discussing gender and space, leaving behind the simple focus on women-as-victim in the public arena and remapping our considerations of space which look beyond bricks and mortar. Contributors: Aylish Wood, Robyn Longhurst, Grant, Lesley Klein, Affrica Taylor, Inga-Lisa Sangregorio, Jacqueline Leavitt, Tracey Skelton, Nina Wakefield, Jos Boys, Sally R. Munt, Doreen Massey, Jacquie Burgess, Maher Anjum, Lynne Walker.

The New Port Moresby Dec 31 2019 The New Port Moresby: Gender, Space, and Belonging in Urban Papua New Guinea explores the ways in which educated, professional women experience living in Port Moresby, the burgeoning capital of Papua New Guinea. Drawing on postcolonial and feminist scholarship, the book adds to an emerging literature on cities in the "Global South" as sites of oppression, but also resistance, aspirationalism and activism. Taking an intersectional feminist approach, the book draws on a decade of research conducted with the educated professional women of Port Moresby, offering unique insight into class transitions and the perspectives of this small but significant cohort. The New Port Moresby expands the scope of research on writing about gendered experiences in Port Moresby, moving beyond the idea that the city is an exclusively hostile place for women. Without discounting the problems of uneven development, the author argues that the city's new places offer women a degree of freedom and autonomy in a city predominantly characterized by restriction. In doing so, it offers an ethnographically rich perspective on the interaction between the global and the "local" and what this might mean for feminism and the advancement of equity in the Pacific area. The New Port Moresby will find an audience among anthropologists, particularly those interested in the Pacific, feminist geographers committed to expanding research to include cities in the Global South and development theorists interested in understanding the roles played by educated elites in less economically developed contexts. There have been few ethnographic monographs about Port Moresby and those that have tended to marginalize or ignore gender. Yet as feminist geographers make clear, women and men are positioned differently in the world and their relationship to the places in which they live is also different. The New Port Moresby has no predecessors and stands alone in the Pacific as an account of this kind. As such, The New Port Moresby should be read by scholars and students of diverse disciplines interested in urbanization, gender, and the Pacific.

Skateboarding and Femininity May 30 2020 Skateboarding and Femininity explores and highlights the value of femininity both within skateboarding and wider culture. This book examines skateboarding's relationship to gender politics through a consideration of the personal politics connected to individual skateboarders, the spatial arenas in which skateboarding takes place, and by understanding the performance of tricks and movements as part of gender-based power dynamics. Dani Abulhawa analyses the discursive framework connected to skateboarding philanthropic projects and how these operate through gendered tropes. Through the author's work with skateboarding charity SkatePal, this book offers an alternative way of recognising and valuing skateboarding philanthropy projects, proposing a move toward a more open and explorative somatic perspective.

Cinema, Gender, and Everyday Space 06 2020 Commedia all'italiana, or Comedy, Italian style, became popular at a time of great social change. This book, utilizing comedies produced in Italy from 1958-70, examines the genre's representation of gender in the everyday spaces of beaches and nightclubs, offices, cars, and homes, through the exploration of key spatial motifs.

Gender and Space in Rural Britain, 1840-1920 03 2021 The essays in this collection focus on the ways in which rural life was represented during the long nineteenth century. Contributors bring expertise from the fields of history, geography and literature to present an interdisciplinary study of the interplay between rural space and gender during a time of increasing industrialization and social change.

Gender Space Architecture Aug 31 2022 This significant reader brings together for the first time the most important essays concerning the intersecting subjects of gender, space and architecture. Carefully structured with numerous introductory essays, it guides the reader through theoretical and multi-disciplinary texts and offers considerations of gender in relation to particular architectural sites, projects and ideas. This collection represents a seminal point in gender and architecture, both summarizing core debates and pointing toward new directions for discussions for the future.

Gender, Space and Agency in India Jul 28 2022 This volume explores the links between gender, space and agency in India. It offers fresh perspectives and frameworks within which these links can be analyzed across diverse geographical contexts in India. The chapters in this volume are based on field studies which show how agency is gendered. The volume examines how gender and agency are fashioned by a multitude of contexts, socio-economic processes, policy interventions and geographic phenomenon and manifest in areas such as education, decentralization of politics, rising social inequalities, poverty, green revolution, mechanization of agriculture and even drought. This book will be of interest to researchers, teachers and practitioners in the fields of geography, social and cultural geography, and those interested in geographies of gender. It will also be useful for policy makers interested in the issues of gender and development in India.

Space, Place and Gender Dec 30 2022 This new book brings together Doreen Massey's key writings on the areas central to a range of disciplines. In addition, the author reflects on the development of these ideas and outlines her current position on these important issues. The book is organized around the three themes of space, place and gender. It traces the development of ideas about the social nature of space and place and their relationship both to issues of gender and debates within feminism. It is debates in these areas which have been central to bringing geography to the centre of social sciences thinking in recent years, and this book includes writings which have been fundamental to that process. Beginning with the economy and social structures of production, it develops a wider notion of spatiality as the product of intersecting social relations. In turn this has led to new conceptions of 'place' as essentially open and hybrid, always provisional and contested. These themes are explored with much current thinking about identity within both feminism and cultural studies. Each of the three themes is preceded by a section which reflects on the development of ideas and sets out the context of their production. The introduction assesses the current state of play and argues for the close relationship of new thinking to these themes. This book will be of interest to students in geography, social theory, women's studies and cultural studies.

Space, Gender, Knowledge: Feminist Readings 02 2022 'Space Gender Knowledge' is an innovative and comprehensive introduction to the geographies of gender and the gendered nature of spatial relations. It examines the major issues raised by women's movements and academic feminism, and outlines the major strands of feminist geographical work, from the geography of women to the impact of post-structuralism. In making this selection, the editors have drawn on a wide range of interdisciplinary material, ranging across spatial theory from the body to the globe. The book presents influential arguments for the importance of the intersection of space and gender. Looking both at geography and beyond the discipline, it explores the gendered construction of space and the spatial construction of gender. Divided into a number of conceptual sections, each prefaced by an editorial introduction, this reader includes extracts from both landmark texts and less well-known works. It is an indispensable introduction to this dynamic field of study.

Urban Spaces and Gender in Asia 12 2021 Exploring the relationship between place and identity, this book gathers 30 papers that highlight experiences from throughout the Asia-Pacific region. The countries presented include China, India, Japan, Indonesia, and Thailand. Readers will gain a better understanding of how urbanization is affecting gender equity in Asian-Pacific cities in the 21st century. The contributing authors examine the practical implications of urban development and link them with the broader perspective of urban ecology. They consider how visceral experiences connect with structural and discursive spheres. Further, they investigate how multiple, interconnected relations of power shape gender (in)equity in urban ecologies. The book addresses such issues as construction of Kawaii as an idealized femininity, diversity among homosexuals in India, and single women and rental housing. In turn, the authors present hitherto unexplored sub-themes from post-colonial historiography and existentialist literary perspectives, and share a vast range of multi-disciplinary views on issues concerning gendered dispossession due to the impact of urban policy and governance. The topics include socio-spatial and ethnic segregation in urban spaces; intersections of gender, race, ethnicity, religion, and caste in urban spaces; and identity-based marginalization, including that of LGBT groups. Overall, the book brings together perspectives from the humanities and the social sciences, and represents a significant contribution to the vital theoretical and practical debates on urbanism and gender equity.

Gender, Violence and Power in Indonesia 29 2019 This book uses an interdisciplinary approach to chart how various forms of violence – domestic, military, legal and political – are not separate instances of violence but rather embedded in structural inequalities brought about by colonialism, occupation and state violence. The book explores both case studies of individuals and of groups to examine experiences of violence within the context of gender and structures of power in modern Indonesian history and Indonesia-related diasporas. It argues that gendered violence is particularly important to consider in this region because of its complex history of conflict and authoritarian rule, the diversity of people that have been affected by violence, as well as the complexity of the religious and cultural communities involved. The book focuses in particular on textual and visual narratives of violence, visualisations of violence, commemorations of violence and the politics of care.

Gendered Spaces 26 2022 In hundreds of businesses, secretaries -- usually women -- do clerical work in "open floor" settings while managers -- usually men -- work and make decisions behind closed doors. As noted by Daphne Spain, this arrangement is but one example of the ways in which physical segregation has contributed to women's inequality. In this important new book, Spain shows how the physical and symbolic barriers that separate women and men in the office, at home, and at school block women's access to the socially valued knowledge that enhances status. Spain looks at first at how nonindustrial societies have separated men and women. Focusing then on one major advanced industrial society, the United States, Spain examines changes in spatial arrangements that have taken place since the mid-nineteenth century and considers how women's status is associated with those changes. As divisions within the middle-class home have diminished, for example, women have gained the right to vote and control property. At colleges and universities, the progressive integration of the sexes has given women students greater access to resources and career options. In the workplace, however, the traditional patterns of segregation still predominate. Illustrated with floor plans and apt pictures of homes, schools, and work sites, and replete with historical examples, Gendered Spaces exposes the previously invisible spaces in which daily gender segregation has occurred and still occurs.

Gendered Approaches to Spatial Development in Europe 07 2020 This book explores the extent to which gendered approaches are evident and effective in spatial development in selected European countries. Starting with an introduction to theories and concepts of gender, space and development, the book includes a historical review of gender in spatial planning and development throughout Europe in general, and an overview of different national frameworks in European countries, comparing legal, organisational and cultural similarities and differences. This is followed by a critical reflection on how simplifications and stereotypes of gender are used in the practice of spatial development. The main part of the book offers a transnational discussion of planning practices on selected thematic topics. It starts with gender-sensitivity in urban master planning at the neighbourhood level referring to different types of planning manuals. Furthermore, the book focuses on sensitive evaluation in urban planning as well as international agendas for sustainable development as a framework for a new generation of gender equality policies. The chapter authors assert that climate change, migration and austerity have threatened gender equality and therefore spatial development needs to be alert to gender dimensions. The editors end with an outlook and suggestions for further action and research on gender issues in spatial development. With inputs from some of Europe's leading thinkers on gender, social development, this volume is designed to inspire students, scholars and practitioners to reflect upon the contribution that gendered approaches can make in the various fields of spatial development and environmental planning.

Gender and Space in Early Modern England May 28 2022 Space was not simply a passive backdrop to a social system that had structural origins elsewhere; it was vitally important for marking out and maintaining hierarchy that sustained social and gender order in sixteenth- and seventeenth-century England. Gender had considerable influence on its use and organization; status and gender were displayed physically and spatially every moment of the day, from a person's place at table to the bed on which he or she slept, in places of recreation, in dress, gesture and modes of address. Space was also the basis for the formation of gendered spaces which were constantly contested and restructured, as this book shows. Examining in turn domestic, sacred spaces and the spatial division of labour in gender construction, the author demonstrates how they shift, and with them the position and power of women. She shows that the ideological assumption that spaces are subject to all men is flawed, and exposes the limitations of interpretations which rely on the modern opposition of public/private, male/female, to describe gender relations and their changes across the period, offering a much more complex and picture than has hitherto been perceived. The book will be essential not just for historians of the family and of women, but for all those studying early modern social history. AMANDA FLATHER is a lecturer in the Department of History at the University of Essex.

Gender, Space and City Bankers May 04 2020 Gendered processes of globalisation, transnationalisation and urbanisation are increasing local and global inequalities and widening the gap between the rich and the poor. The global finance industry plays a key role in these processes, directing its operations from local command points in global cities such as London. Drawing on empirical data collected after the 2008 financial crisis, in depth interviews with male City of London bankers who are also fathers, in depth interviews with their wives, observational data of work and family spaces, and banks' promotional online material –this book examines the day-to-day individual and institutional social practices of wealthy City bankers and banks. The book's analysis offers insight into how the spaces of work and home are integrally linked in ways that mutually support and sustain the gendered dominance of the industry and its highly paid workers. This book will be of interest to postgraduate students, researchers and academics interested in the fields of gender studies, critical theory, and masculinities, urban and metropolitan studies, sociology, studies of globalisation and transnationalisation, anthropology, cultural studies and business management. It will also be interesting for those concerned with the role of the finance industry and neoliberal capitalist ideologies, values and practices in ever-widening local and global inequalities.

Gender, Space and Time Apr 02 2020 Drawing on the work of Henri Lefebvre and Barbara Adam, Gender, Space, and Time is a brilliant study that offers a unique and original threefold conceptualization of how gender and time is developed and applied in an empirical study of women's lives. Moss conceptualizes women's spaces of action and demonstrates the ways in which they construct personal pathways, connect different spaces, experience, intergrate new time demands into the multiple rhythms of their everyday lives, and carve out their space.

Public Urban Space, Gender and Segregation Oct 21 2021 Public spaces are the renditions of the power relations and symmetry within the social setting it resides in, and is both controlling and confining of power. In an inequality-laden context, urban design encompasses values and meanings and is utilized as a means to construct and perpetuate visible and invisible boundaries. Hence, gendered spatial dichotomy based on a biologically-influenced division of sexes is often employed systematically to evade the transgression of women into the public sphere. The production of modern urban space in the Middle East is formed in the interplay between modernity, tradition and religion. Examining women in public spaces and patterns of interaction with gender -segregated and -integrated space, this book argues that gendered spaces are far from a static physical spatial division and production.

complex and dynamic dichotomy of men/public and women/private. Taking the example of Iran, normative ideologically-laden gender segregated public spaces have been used as a tool for the Islamization of everyday life. The most recent government effort includes women-only parks, purportedly designed and administered through women's contributions, as well as to accommodate their needs and provide space for social interaction and activities. Combining research approaches from urban planning and social sciences, this book analyzes the technical and social aspects of women-only parks. Addressing the relationships between ideology, urban planning, and gender, the book interprets power relations and how they are used to define and plan public and urban spaces. Lack of communication across disciplinary boundaries as result of complexities of urban planning has been one of the major hindrances in studying urban spaces in the Middle East. Addressing the concern, the interdisciplinary approach employed in this volume is an amalgamation of methods informed by urban planning and social sciences, which includes an in-depth analysis of the morphological, perceptual, social, visual, functional, and temporal dimensions of the public space, the women-only parks in Iran. Based on critical ethnography, this volume uses a phenomenological approach to understating women in gendered spaces. Interaction of women in women-only parks in Iran, a gendered space which is growing in popularity across the Muslim world is analyzed thoroughly and compared vis-à-vis gender-neutral public spaces. The book targets scholars and students in a wide range of academic disciplines including urban studies, urban planning, gender studies, political science, Middle Eastern studies, cultural studies, urban anthropology, urban sociology, Iranian studies and Islamic studies.

Women, Religion, and Space Oct 09 2020 This volume studies females who practice or interact with gendered norms of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam in relation to the geography of place. The book focuses on a range of religious and secular authorities to control women's access to distinct spaces to show how religious women navigate harsh terrain and attain mobility within established institutions. The writings are grouped into three sections: "Women and Colonial Regimes," "Religion and Women's Mobility," and "New Spaces for Religious Women." Secular, critical, and comparative viewpoints are explored, with much of the scholarship steeped in fieldwork, i.e., an orthodox district in Jerusalem, a shopping mall in Istanbul, women travelers in Pakistan, and Korean immigrant women in Los Angeles. Contributors broaden notions of space to extend beyond national borders, external and internal boundaries, and assorted identifying markers, such as race or class. By examining a "new" aspect of space/geography these essays promote challenge, irony, and unexpected insights. Multi-cultural and international in scope, this work makes a significant, groundbreaking contribution to the field of geography.